7D - DSLR

Posted by WIChaser - 2010/01/21 18:57

Hey Everyone,

I'm in the market for a new DSLR and am currently looking at getting a Canon 7D. Just curious if anyone else has this camera, or has heard any feedback about it, good or bad.

Thanks!

==========

Re:7D - DSLR

Posted by tornado92 - 2010/01/21 19:28

Its a immense camera, 18 megapixels, 8fps, 19 point autofocus, dual World Class Digic 4 processors, the good stuff keeps on getting better and better. :)

Its also good value, and compared with other Pro-Am's, its pretty compact giving the technology its packed with.

==========

Re:7D - DSLR

Posted by mikeO - 2010/01/22 01:43

A friend of mine has the 7D. He's more than happy with it. From the images he's been capturing the resolution is right up there. Given it has HD video capability that's also a bonus. But make sure you have good glass to screw onto it, otherwise you're wasting your money.

With any high end DSLR settings are important and crucial - they can be a bit intimidating sometimes :)

If you can afford one then I would recommend it highly. They retail here in Oz for about $3800 - that's for the body ONLY. Add a decent lens and there's another $2,000 up...but once you're in that 'zone' you won't look back.

Obligatory link for those who want to see its specs.

http://www.usa.canon.com/consumer/controller?act=ModelInfoAct&fcategoryid=139&modelid=19356

==========

Re:7D - DSLR

Posted by WIChaser - 2010/01/23 22:19

Awesome, thanks for the feedback guys!!!

I'm going to go pick one up tomorrow!! I'm going to start with the 28-135mm kit lens for now and hopefully be able to pick up a higher end wide angle zoom lens before storm season kicks in!

==========